Important information

Use this form to make a binding or non-lapsing death benefit nomination to provide a written direction to the Trustee who is to receive your superannuation benefit in the event of your death and in what proportions.

If you wish to make a non-binding death benefit nomination, please update in the Super Tab within the Secure Online Portal.

Your binding death benefit nomination must clearly set out the proportion of benefit to be paid to each nominee and must add up to 100 percent. See below for the difference between the two types of death benefit nominations and who you can nominate as a beneficiary.

The Trustee recommends you seek professional advice before making your nominations to ensure they meet your personal situation and needs, as:

- who you nominate may impact the amount of tax payable in relation to the benefit, and
- the splitting of superannuation benefits between spouses on separation may impact upon the terms of a binding death benefit nomination.

Who you can nominate

Who can receive your benefit in the event of your death?	You can nominate that your benefit is paid to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the legal personal representative of your estate • nominated beneficiary(ies) • a combination of your nominated beneficiary(ies) and/or your legal personal representative. Any beneficiary you nominate must be either your legal personal representative (i.e. the executor or administrator of your estate) or a dependant at the date of your death.
Who qualifies as a dependant?	A dependant may include a: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • spouse of the member, including a de facto spouse • child of the member, including an adopted child, step child, ex-nuptial child or child of a spouse, or child born after the Member's death • person with whom you have an interdependency relationship (see below for definition) • financial dependant.
What is an interdependency relationship?	An interdependency relationship is a close personal relationship between two people who live together, where one or both of them provide for the financial and domestic support and personal care of the other. An interdependency relationship may still exist if there is a close personal relationship but the other requirements are not satisfied because of some physical, intellectual or psychiatric disability. The Trustee may also take other matters into account such as all the circumstances of the relationship as prescribed by law.

Taxation of death benefits

You should also note that death benefits paid to non-dependants (for tax purposes) must be paid as a lump sum and will usually be subject to tax (including when the benefit comes via your estate). A non-dependant for tax purposes includes a child aged 18 and over who is not financially dependent or an interdependent.

Binding death benefit nomination versus non-binding death benefit nomination

What is a binding death benefit nomination?

A binding death benefit nomination is a written direction to the Trustee that sets out the dependants and/or legal personal representative, as nominated by a member, to receive his/her benefit in specified proportions in the event of the member's death. When you make a valid binding death benefit nomination, you decide who receives your benefit when you die, and how much of the benefit they receive.

If a binding death benefit nomination is valid and in effect at the date of the member's death, the Trustee must pay the benefit to the beneficiary or beneficiaries nominated in the nomination, set out in the member's binding death benefit nomination sub-plan of OneSuper ABN 43 905 581 638 RSE R1001341 (formerly Smartsave Members Choice Superannuation Plan). The Allan Gray Superannuation and Allan Gray Retirement Product Disclosure Statement is issued by Diversa Trustees Limited ABN 49 006 421 638, AFSL No 235153 RSE Licence No L0000635 the Trustee of Allan Gray Superannuation and Allan Gray Retirement and OneSuper.

However, the Trustee is not required to comply with a binding death benefit nomination if the notice is not valid and in effect at the date of the member's death OR if the Trustee is aware that the payment of the benefit under the binding death benefit nomination, or the lodgement of, or failure to revoke, the notice, would be a breach of a court order.

Binding death benefit nominations have an expiry date of three years from the date of the form and will remain valid until the expiry date or you cancel your notice without replacing it or change your notice by making another binding death benefit nomination (whichever happens first).

To cancel a previous binding death benefit nomination, complete Sections 1, 3, 4 and 5 of this form.

Ensuring your binding death benefit nomination is valid

- Each death benefit nominee must be either your dependant (as defined in Superannuation Law) or your legal personal representative,
- You must ensure that the proportion of the benefit that will be paid to your nominated person or each of those nominated persons is certain and ascertainable. If it is not clear what percentage is to be paid to whom and/or the percentages do not add up to 100%, your nomination will be invalid,
- Your nomination must be in writing,
- You must sign and date your nomination in the presence of two (2) witnesses, being persons:
 - each of whom has turned 18 years old, and
 - neither of whom is mentioned in the nomination, and
- Your nomination must contain a declaration signed and dated at the same time and day by the witnesses stating that the nomination was signed by you in their presence.

What is a non-binding death benefit nomination?

- The Trustee will take into consideration any nomination you make, however, in this case, the Trustee has final discretion in deciding who will receive your superannuation benefit when you die and is not bound to follow the nomination and may decide to pay all or part of the benefit to a different person who is a dependant or your legal personal representative.
- The non-binding death benefit nomination is valid for the entire term you are a member, unless another valid notice (binding or non-binding) in writing is lodged with the Trustee.
- Requires no witness signatures.
- Will not override a previous, valid binding nomination.

What happens if my death benefit nomination is not valid at time of my death?

In the event a person you nominate is not a dependant at the time of your death (e.g. because they have died before you) or your nomination has been cancelled, or the proportion of the benefit to be paid in the notice was not clear or does not add up to 100%, or if the notice was not witnessed properly or has expired, your death benefit nomination will no longer be valid and the Trustee will use its discretion to determine how your benefit should be paid to your dependants and/or your legal personal representative.
